

The Jamboree needs YOU!

The 22nd World Scout Jamboree will be held in Sweden this summer. Over 38,000 Scouts will spend 2 fantastic weeks camping near Kristianstad in southern Sweden, learning new skills, making new friends and, of course, having fun. There will be around 10,000 adults there to keep things running, and each one of them will need to be fed! So, with so many mouths to feed, we are searching for people with experience of working in a kitchen or food-handling environment to volunteer to share their skills to help make the Jamboree a success. We are particularly interested in people with experience as a cook, chef or kitchen porter, especially in large-scale catering (e.g. hospital, school or large Scout camp). But any experience of the catering industry would be very useful.

Are you a food expert who wants to do something different this summer? Then we want to hear from you!

We are asking people to volunteer over 1, 2, or 3 weeks between 19th July and 8th August. In return you will get to meet people from all different countries, cultures and backgrounds, as well as the amazing experience of working in Sweden's largest restaurant! You will be able to expand your network and make contacts with people involved in the catering industry throughout Europe and worldwide.

There is no fee for attending the Jamboree as a kitchen specialist, and your meals will be provided. If you are interested, please send an email giving some details about yourself and your experience to info@worldscoutjamboree.se. We can then send you more information.

You can find more details about the Jamboree on our website at www.worldscoutjamboree.se
